Congratulazioni a tutti gli artisti, partecipanti ed organizzatori del Salieri Circus Award!

TAKE

Congratulations to all the artists, participants and event organizers of the Salieri Circus Award!

A hope realized

One of the hopes that from the beginning led me to bet on this festival, was that, as mayor of Legnago, to bring on our city a wind of innovation and internationality, as well as aiming at a reevaluation of the name of our illustrious fellow citizen, Antonio Salieri, to whom the event was dedicated. To date, with the inauguration of the third edition of the International Salieri Circus Award, I am proud to say that my hopes have been amply rewarded, thanks to the will of a close-knit team that has been able to keep the name of our territory high.

The active support of the City Council and the forces put in place by the citizens, who immediately welcomed the event with warmth and enthusiasm, helped to make the festival a fixture in the city calendar, expected with trepidation, bringing Legnago to become, for a week a year, the "capital of circus arts". This commitment has had an important and concrete recognition, with the winning of the prestigious Art Bonus competition organized by the Ministry of Culture in collaboration with ALES Spa, which saw the International Salieri Circus Award on the podium in the shows section, becoming the most voted live event in Italy.

This year I had the pleasure of supporting the creation of the Salieri Academy, another initiative connected to the festival, thanks to which the children of our city's dance schools were involved in the realization of the overture. This is an element that joins to increase the already high artistic value fielded by the festival, which for this edition will see the participation of a wonderful live symphony orchestra, with selected elements of our territory, which will accompany the extraordinary performances of artists from all over the world. I was also excited to welcome the idea of hosting the Salieri Circus Parade, a project part of Elephant Parade, a unique work of art that will see the installation of about 20 statues depicting elephants, painted by artists and celebrities, in front of the Salieri Theatre. It is a world-renowned initiative aimed at safeguarding these magnificent animals in their natural habitat that has been hosted in major international capitals such as London, Singapore, Rio De Janeiro, Copenhagen, Tokyo, Las Vegas, Amsterdam and Hong Kong.

Legnago and with her the entire "Pianura dei Dogi" can, therefore, boast of having relaunched in an original and engaging way the cultural activities that the Administration has undertaken to support.

As every year, I thank all the staff of the organizers and creators of the International Salieri Circus Award for having chosen to contribute to this mission and at the same time I renew my hope for a lasting collaboration.

Un Festival for Art

A blink of an eye and we are already at the third edition of the International Salieri Circus Award, an important milestone for this festival born from the desire of us brothers Giarola to breathe new life to the circus arts. And we think we have succeeded, thanks to the innovative choice to intersect the circus arts to the cultured music played live by a symphony orchestra that, this year, can count on the direction and professionalism of Maestro Diego Basso. The idea has found solid roots in our beloved city, Legnago, the homeland of the composer to whom we have chosen to dedicate this event, Antonio Salieri, a tribute that celebrates the union between circus art and his music.

Our vision, in fact, is to encourage the fundamental role of music in accompanying circus performances, because we believe that these two forms of art complement each other, benefiting from each other thanks to the power of the visual plastic element of the artists and the poetry of classical sounds, which create a unique experience for the viewer.

For more than twenty years we are active to contribute to the promotion of circus art, focusing our energies especially in the enhancement of the cultural aspect of this ancient form of expression, and our commitment translates into a festival that pays particular attention to the collateral events surrounding the event.

Art in all its forms will find space in this edition from the rich calendar of events, thanks to exceptional guests including Anatoliy Zalevskyy, to whom we are proud to confer the platinum Salieri career, Luca Luce, famous 3D make up artist, or the company Teatro Necessario that for more than 20 years has been carrying on an intense activity of production of contemporary circus and urban theater. The overture of the show this year was realized thanks to the collaboration with the dance schools of our territory, Mi La Bounce asd, Progetto Danza A.S.D, Art Dance School, DanzArmonia, and with the collaboration of Il Tempio degli Elfi and the Little Circus of Dreams by Paride Orfei.

We also believe it is necessary that through art various forms of social commitment are promoted, so we have continued the collaboration with Acque Veronesi for a plastic free festival, or the choice to host last year an incredible artist like Silke Pan whose physical limits have not affected her ability to excite the audience. The festival will host for this third edition a unique art installation in the world, the Salieri Circus Parade, part of the project Elephant Parade, which will be located in front of the Salieri Theatre and will help to support the protection of elephants in their natural habitat.

We arrived at these results thanks to the support of the many people who believed in the goodness of our project, first of all the mayor of Legnago Graziano Lorenzetti with all the city administration. To testify that we are on the right path to make the International Salieri Circus Award a festival of value was the award of the victory of the prestigious Art Bonus competition organized by the Ministry of Culture in collaboration with ALES Spa, which underlined how much all the work and commitment put up so far has been worth to carry on this shared dream.

We therefore thank all those who together with us have engaged in the forefront with enthusiasm in the heart to pursue our belief that circus art deserves to be seen as a complete artistic expression, capable of exciting, amaze and involve the public of all ages.

and Luciano Giarola*

THE CITY OF LEGNAGO

Brief historical notes

Map of the stronghold of Legnago (1750 ca). Fondazione Fioroni, Legnago (VR)

Among the largest municipalities in the province of Verona, Legnago extends with an irregular plan on the two banks of the Adige. Important agricultural and industrial center with plants active in the mechanical, chemical, food, wine, textile, paper and wood sectors.

The history of Legnago is lost in a distant past dotted with glorious moments. The city matured, in fact, a remarkable prestige in Roman times, constituting one of the landmarks of Bassa Veronese, a prestige that lasted during the subsequent domination of the Lombards. From 932 Legnago was a fief administered by the Bishops of Verona, who took over several lordships, including that of the Scaligeri, Visconti and Carraresi. From the position on the Adige, Legnago derived its strategic importance. Station of pile dwellings, in Roman times there was the Forum Allieni (part of the archaeological finds is in the local museum of the Fioroni Foundation). It was called Arimannia under the Lombards; it was held by the bishop of Verona until 1207; until 1387 it was under the Scaligeri and, from 1405, under Venice. The first Venetian fortifications date back to 1494, renovated after 1531 to designs by M. Sanmicheli. Taken by the French in 1796, by order of Napoleon had dismantled the defensive works.

The new Austrian fortifications (1815) made Legnago a constitutive element of the Quadrilatero (with Verona, Mantua and Peschiera).

It suffered flooding in 1868 and 1882, was damaged in the war of 1866 and was almost destroyed in 1944-45.

TEATRO SALIERI

LEGNAGO

THE SALIERI THEATRE

The history of the Salieri Theatre of Legnago begins at the beginning of the 20th century, with the will of some citizens to build a theater in the city.

The construction of the theatre began in 1911, according to the joint project of Vittorio Bressan and Benvenuto Maggioni, who were commissioned by a group of Legnaghesi gathered in the "Società Anonima Teatrale". The works suffered a setback due to the outbreak of the First World War in 1915. Only in 1925 the works were resumed, and in great haste to celebrate the First centenary of the death of Antonio Salieri, the well-known musician Legnaghese to whom it was dedicated.

Following the economic difficulties that prevented the completion of the building, the "Società Anonima Teatrale" ceded the structure to the Municipality. The interior of the theater and its facade were designed in 1941 by the architect Luigi Piccinato, but this project was not completed because of the Second World War.

The Salieri theatre was finally inaugurated on September 15, 1956 and for over thirty years its calendar has always been full of theatrical performances, as well as being used as a cinema. The building was closed in 1989 in order to allow the realization of some renovations and extraordinary maintenance in order to adapt it to the law.

Luciano Cenna, the Veronese architect to whom the works were entrusted, preferred to operate through a conservative restoration recovering all the pre-existing elements, especially the decorative ones of the columns and pilasters of the atrium and the redoubt. As a result of these works, the theater was inaugurated again in 1999.

ANTONIO SALIERI

European musician

Antonio Salieri was born in Legnago on 18 August 1750 to a family of merchants. Soon Antonio, together with his brother, approached the music devoting himself to the study of violin and harpsichord.

At the tender age of fourteen, he moved to Venice, where he came into contact with Florian Leopold Gassmann, then Kapellmeister in Vienna. In a short time Antonio's talent attracted the attention of the master, who wanted him with him at the court of Joseph II of Habsburg in Vienna. In this context, the young Salieri had the opportunity to learn and practice counterpoint and composition. Music became a fundamental element in Antonio's life, and his talent led him to fill the role of opera until 1770 and later that of kammercompositeur and kapellmeister.

Joseph II of Habsburg particularly admired the Italian composer, and asked Anthony to write a singspiel. Given the excellent quality of the work, the relationship between the two became strong and full of mutual admiration.

Eight years later came a turning point for Antony's professional career which received the office of Hofkapellmeister. In this period Salieri oversaw the selection of new court instrumentalists and singers, supervised the purchase of instruments, and maintained the music library in good condition. The records of the royal chapel for the period from 1820 until his retirement in 1824 show that for regular services he frequently chose the masses of Albrechtsberger, Joseph and Michael Haydn, Georg Reutter the Younger, Eybler, Leopold Hofmann and Mozart.

Salieri's artistic production was rich and varied. He wrote 94 arias for other artists, 42 works, 13 secular cantatas, 18 secular choirs, as well as a vast repertoire of sacred music, which includes oratorios and cantatas, masses and single movements, gradual, offertory, psalms, canticles, litanies, hymns, takes, motets, sacred arias and songs. There is also a vast repertoire of instrumental music, for a total of 6 concerts, 9 works including symphonies, overtures and variations, 7 serenades, 5 marches and a large repertoire of chamber music. In addition, there is a series of theoretical works, non-musical writings, adaptations of foreign works and collaborations with other composers. This shows that the brilliant mind of Antonio Salieri was a machine that produced hundreds of works known throughout Europe.

Salieri's and Mozart's music are very similar from a technical-compositional point of view. It must be pointed out that in some cases, not even an expert ear would be able to distinguish with certainty the music of Italian from that of Salzburg. At the time the desire to enhance the national musical theatres was certainly important, still largely under the influence of Italian music (the presence of Salieri at court was the confirmation of the persistence of this authority), a strongly felt need, also linked to the desire to assert the sovereignty of the local courts. However, the relationship between Salieri and Mozart was always cordial.

One must consider the role of kapellmeister held by Salieri: if he wanted to overshadow the genius of Mozart he would have created a program different from the one he directed for the coronation of Leopold II (which was an almost entirely Mozartian program).

The formidable talent of Antonio Salieri, led him to have about eighty students, among whom stood out composers of great fame and prestige such as Beethoven, Liszt, Schubert, Franz Xaver Mozart and many others.

MAESTRO DIEGO BASSO

His artistic approach aims to eliminate the barriers of music ranging from opera arias to pop and symphonic rock.

"Music without borders" seems to be his motto. Releasing emotions to connect different musical universes. Strive for perfection and combine different musical experiences with quality circus performances.

For the Salieri Circus has chosen pages of classical, modern and contemporary music, generations of musicians different from each other with songs that have the ability to touch the emotional strings in a surprising way. At the Festival he will conduct the Italian Symphonic Rhythmic Orchestra that will accompany live the performances of the artists.

PRINCE MAURICE

The Grand Marshall

It would have been easier to call a talented Monsieur Loyal. But the Salieri Circus didn't want a traditional presenter. He was looking for something else. He demanded a master of ceremonies.

Elegant, talented, bizarre. And he found it in Prince Maurice, descendant of the illustrious family of Princes Agosti Montenaro Durazzo of Bergamo. An all-round artist, actor, singer, musician, dancer, performer and director of spectacular events in the most exclusive theatres and clubs in Europe, Prince Maurice has for many years been the official face of Giacomo Casanova at the Venice Carnival.

Overture

Every year, the festival's overture is dedicated to a work by Antonio Salieri. After the Armida (1771), the Axur, King of Ormus (1788) and the Talisman (1779) this year is the turn of The World in Reverse (1792).

Following the birth of the Salieri Academy, for this edition it was decided to involve some local schools with their students, among whom three "special" boys were selected.

On an idea and choreographic coordination of Elena Grossule and the collaboration of the teachers, a large and complex overall picture has been created, but original for the aesthetic-stylistic diversity it contains.

Finale

Axur, Re d'Ormus is a five-act tragicomic opera composed by Antonio Salieri to a libretto by Lorenzo Da Ponte based on Tarare, an opera already set to music by Salieri for the Paris Opera, which sanctioned the musician's success outside the Habsburg borders. In this version adapted to the tastes of the Viennese court, Salieri decided to replace the danced element, more appreciated in France, with a harlequin, or a comic interlude of clear reference to the Commedia dell'Arte, the first true source of inspiration for circus comedy.

Verticalism with canes

A swallow. Verticalism, ca va sans dire, is one of the most elegant circus disciplines. If then the artist has the class of this young Frenchman, his classic style, precise, graceful, in absolute purity, his legs and his feet become wings, and make up figures full of grace and sweetness. Sinuous, elegant, performs the most difficult steps with the greatest naturalness.

His movements closely recall those of one of the greatest verticalists of the twentieth century, the Russian Oleg Izossimov, who shaped him, and who was discovered by the director of Salieri, Antonio Giarola who launched him in the nineties at the Verona Festival "Stars of the Circus".

Juggling

I can tell it's weird. Because it's funny, and it has a clown face, Grygoriy Lovygin, who comes from a circus family, studied in a circus school, and started doing his job when he was only nine. But he has a music stand with a score, and he holds a conductor's baton in his hand.

But the wand soon disappears, and as if by magic a ball appears, and then another, and then another. So you understand that it's actually a juggler. Shaggy, complicated, super fast, fun. Very modern. He toured 55 countries with his show. They christened him "The king of the piruetas".

Hair Hanging

Looks like a puppet hanging by a thread. Only, unlike puppets, it's not hanging by the feet or the hands, or even the head, but the hair. Discipline not very frequent, which requires great willpower, concentration and maximum meditation to overcome the test of pain.

The number of Marina is particular because it is played, for all its duration, in suspension, with only rare and brief moments when it rests its feet on the ground. Marina flies that you forget that she is hanging by a thread, free your hands and arms, in anella jumps and pirouettes and complicated acrobatic figures, and the flight becomes fast, swirling.

Hand to Hand

The African circus, both new and old, can arrange colors on the palette. In this case, the number of stunts on the ground of this young couple of artists, a boy and a girl, dresses with different light a traditional practice, and usually reserved for countries of other latitudes, such as hand-to-hand.

It is a number that has delicate steps, almost danced, then suddenly the rhythm becomes pressing, the fast movements, the increasingly difficult exercises, to the limit of the impossible, as when the girl is all in one hand, standing straight, or manages to stay in balance, standing on one leg, on the partner's head.

Opera Ventriloquism

"That tenor is a dog!" sometimes shouted the loggionists of opera houses. Imagine if it was a sheep. And yet. Yet the Italian Daniele Tommasi, together with his partner Naimana Casanova, will sing just one sheep, or rather two, in an attempt to repeat the success (Salieri d'argento) obtained at the last edition of the Festival by another famous ventriloquist as Andrea Fratellini.

Daniele and Naimana, couple in art and life, do not come from the world of circus. Lovers of opera, they started with puppets, then decided that their stage was the street. They love to make their sheep sing with tenor voices.

Cyr Wheel

He looks like a guy who happened to be there by accident. He has a modern look, the walking clothes, those of today's young people that you can meet in Central Park. Then there's his wheel. A simple tool. You can do a lot of things with it. Very different also. And Alex, son of his time, works the wheel with times and ways of his time. It lives inside and out, far and wide, high and low, with hands and feet, and even without any support.

Almost a dance, which at times has ancient, ancestral rhythms, and then suddenly inflames, takes swirling, alienating rhythms, from the Chaplinian frenzy of modern times.

She smiles. She always smiles. She just says, she just likes to fly. And she flies. ## Flowing Sword

He's a legend in his country. Not only for the originality of the number he brings on stage, the dance with the sword ("Flowing sword" is the exact diction), but for the way he interprets it, risky and fascinating.

Inspired by martial arts, in which he is a master, and especially by Tai Chi, Hui Yi Tsai - this is his real name - handles with ease and twirls everything around his body and even over his body a sword of respectable proportions, in the one that has the steps of a ritual dance and the movements of an ancient samurai battle fought to the death. A performance that leaves you breathless.

Roller skating

It's easy to say skates. Look at this issue. Acrobatic skating is a crazy discipline, reaching very high heights of audacity. Not really for everyone. If then Slava and Olena, the artists of this duo, decide to dress in eighteenth-century clothes as if they were at a party evening at the court of Vienna, and pirouette in increasingly whirling vaults, among wigs, fans and crinolines, then the picture is completed in a crescendo without breath.

Of considerable impact and difficulty the final steps, pleasant choreography that does not disdain lazzi and motteggi in a comic key, just like in the comedies of Goldoni.

Contortion and archery

Circus lovers know well how, historically, for the seriousness of their schools, the best contortionists in the world come from Mongolia. But when contortionism is added to another discipline, also not very simple, like archery, the picture of this biathlon circus inevitably becomes complicated.

These two pretty girls perform complicated balancing acts and reach unthinkable summits when they stretch the bow with their feet centering the target, one above the other in full contortion, and in opposite directions.

DUO RINGS

ITALY / ARGENTINA

Aerial Rings

Latin souls in athletes' bodies. The one formed by Flora Aracama and Nico Busso is an Italian-Argentine pair of circus acrobats who have combined their passion for sports, practiced at the highest levels in rhythmic gymnastics, to the circus show.

Their ring act, with which they have performed in large international ensembles as in major television shows, is a dance that begins soft, sly, and then free in the air elegant and sensual, where the two artists hover light, supporting each other with only the strength of a foot, in grips and complicated steps that perform with absolute nonchalance.

Finale

Falstaff is a two-act playful drama composed by Antonio Salieri to a libretto by Carlo Prospero DeFranceschi, loosely based on William Shakespeare's play The Merry Wives of Windsor. The choice to name one of the two performances of the Festival is to emphasize the close connection between the various forms of art promoted by the Salieri Circus Award, which sees intersect, music, body virtuosity, poetry and literature, in an aesthetic balance that makes this event unique.

Juggling

Contamination between circus limbs is not always a happy choice. Sometimes it happens, and it seems to witness a magic. This is the case of Veronika Rass and Vlad Biliauer, from the famous Nikulin of Moscow, who in this issue with a fresh, innovative, refined and curious taste, combine the ancient arts of juggling and acrobatic gymnastics, creating a unique and original atmosphere.

It is not easy, in fact, to exchange clubs in speed while performing complicated acrobatic evolutions. The result is a technically complex number, enhanced by a romantic music, rare among jugglers.

Hand to Hand

Rare commodity, comic acrobatics. Because you have to have two talents, to make people laugh and to know how to do stunts. The Manducas did it beautifully a few years ago (Toni Ferreira, Tino Fratellini). We try today these two young Ukrainian acrobats with their hand-to-hand making a hilarious parody inspired by the cult film Sweet Charity by Bob Fosse, with the music of Cy Coleman.

The result is remarkable, as they manage to achieve a perfect balance between technique and dance. It is interesting to highlight the versatility of the repertoire of these artists who have recently been among the protagonists of the dramatic show My land by director Bence Vági.

Dance Trapeze

Without the trapeze, there wouldn't be a circus. Of course, much water has passed under the bridge, as it is said, since the French gymnast Jules Leotard (1838-1869) invented the trapeze (Paris, Cirque Napoleon, 1859), and many interpretations have been given of this noble art.

The last one comes from this Swiss girl with an ancient, austere look, moving feline, sweaty, almost a Marlene Dietrich wrapped in a cabaret atmosphere of the past. Mysterious and delicate, in her trapeze dance she creates harmonious, refined figures, between theatrical gestures and discreet winks. A new way that comes from afar.

Mimo Juggler

It is not common to meet a mime who also juggles. Or a juggler who enjoys doing mime. The deal gets complicated when what appears for makeup, clothes and moves, at first glance looks like a clown.

But perhaps it is precisely this intriguing mixture that has bewitched the Parisian spectators of that forge of talents that is the Cirque de Demain. Because the young Alejandro belongs to the future with his contamination between the arts, the confusion of languages. Clownesco, bewildered, actor, interprets the ancient art of juggling with balls in an innovative way, full of inventions and technique, in a number that smells of wonder and gives fresh magic.

Contortion

He just sits there, all curled up, with no apparent effort, like a spring-loaded puppet, inside his little box with transparent walls. When he comes out he lies down slowly. He has slow, precise movements. Sinuous movements. Danced steps. Masterfully choreographed. But he has nothing of the fakirs of the circuses of the past. On the contrary.

He's a beautiful young guy, elegant, minimalist dress, in today's clothes. And also his number, the son of an ancient art like contortionism, is a very modern melange of "flexing acrobatics", a discipline that Kalle, who started at eight years as a gymnast, practice and teach, with a notable following.

Feet Theatre

When it is said to recite with the feet. To the letter. The Italian Davide Rausa, aka Monsieur David, is a pioneer of a bizarre art called "Feet Theatre", the Theatre of the Foot. A new vision of the figure theater, which through dramaturgy of different inspirations, tells stories made with the legs that have as protagonists the feet.

The artist's feet are transformed into faces, which become so imaginative characters, so strange as to seem real, creating an exhilarating show that is a mixture of laughter and poetry. David is funny, has technique and sympathy, seems to come out of the comedies of an old film of the silent era.

Aerial Hoop

Mariana always seeks new frontiers. She began her career as a dancer of contemporary dance - and it is noted - to land in the circus arts specializing in circle and aerial straps. Star of the greatest Hispanic-American events, the dance with the circle that Mariana Meza Sàeur presents at Salieri, surprises for inspiration, innovation, poetry, in a refined and dreamy number, far from stereotypes, that goes perfectly with art music.

His work is a set of fluid movements and gestures, where creativity and technique appear closely linked in an almost magical relationship between the artist, his body and his instrument.

Diabolo

It never ceases to amaze the evolution that a small contraption like the diabolo, born years ago as a toy for children, continues to have in various countries of the world, especially when it ends up in the hands of authentic artists. This is the case of this young boy from Malaysia, land of new and rare stunts, who has been able to give a new, very modern course to this discipline, however recent, ringing at diabolical speed a short circuit of dizzying sequences, complicated, bordering on perfection.

It is no coincidence that his interpretation earned him gold, just this year, at a prestigious event such as the Young Stage Festival in Basel.

He says that as a child he always dreamed of flying. That's it. David, once he grew up, finally crowned his dream. Pirouette around a pole as if there was no force of gravity, flexible as a bulrush, ringing complicated figures, in total suspension, with extreme naturalness.

Artist and athlete of extraordinary talent, he was Italian champion, European and world champion of pole sport, discipline that, as the pole gymnastic that currently practices, mixes elements of artistic gymnastics with choreographic movements almost danced that make his number a very original creation of power and elegance.

He likes the world upside down. He feels comfortable. Giordan Anselmi Alessandrini, circus artist for generations, trained at the Academy of Verona, is among the Italian artists to hold high the tricolor flag at the Salieri Circus.

Versatile artist, specializing in acrobatic verticalism, he performs his feats using a fixed staircase that looks like home, only he goes up and down there hopping happily on his hands upside down, even with one hand, and not content in balance on a perch.

Diaphanous, strange, mysterious, almost seem extraterrestrial creatures the four artists of this troupe arrived from Ukraine, that in a dreamy and powerful number of acrobatics on the ground invent hypnotic movements, lunar dances, difficult figures, never banal, up to reach balances that seem impossible.

A very innovative blend, striking for its strength and for the intense expressiveness of the performers, which triumphed at the sophisticated French festival of Massy, and was applauded with open hearts in the most important circuses and theatres of variety in Europe, from Apollo to Arlette Gruss.

ITALY

Theatre, Live Music

The company Teatro Necessario was founded in 2001 in the province of Parma. It gathers artists with a versatile profile, coming from different educational experiences of theater, music and new circus, united by a common poetic intent. Among the distinctive features of the Company's production emerge the radical dismantling of the boundaries between different theatrical and circus disciplines and the choice of a subtle narrative, sometimes impalpable, poised between word and gesture, between acting and poetry, built around changing sets, where spaces and objects interact with actors in an unpredictable way.

Heterogeneous and transversal performances staged not only in the most important European street theatre festivals, but also in the main comedy and innovation theatre festivals.

Pens on trapeze

Papillon and waistcoat, very elegant in its old tuxedo, the ineffable Ramòn climbed on the trapeze one festive evening in Madrid, at the American Grand Circus, and read his article from above, from the top of the chapiteau. More than an article, in truth, it was a real "manifesto" on circus arts, the sheet from which he read, with a set voice, never ended, went down long, long, to touch the sawdust of the track as in a sleight of hand. That evening Ramòn Gomez de la Serna Puig (1888-1963), journalist, writer, aphorist, essayist, playwright, leader of the Spanish futurists, master of surrealist aesthetics, had his consecration as "first official circus chronicler" ("Le Cirque", 1927, editions "Les Documentaires", Paris, preface by Paul, Francois and Albert Fratellini).

He said that the circus critic is "the most beautiful profession in the world". He was absolutely right. The circus is culture. It's literature. It's poetry. And the circus lives because some people write about circus so that the circus lives. This is why, alongside the famous names of the world circus involved in the Technical Jury, also in this third edition of the International Salieri Circus Award we called to the track, in the Press Jury, some of the best

The most voted performance

Andrea Fratellini, the winner of the Audience Award 2022

Italian and international circus critics, representing newspapers, magazines, sites and television stations of seven countries: Italy, Switzerland, France, Spain, Germany, Holland, Usa. It is a pleasure and an honor to present a jury of this level, which has very few equals in the panorama of the great international festivals.

Now more than ever there is a need to tell the circus. And to do so with passion, respect, culture and competence. As Tristan Rémy, as Henry Thetard, as Alessandro Cervellati, as Massimo Alberini. There is a need to make known, spread, study and pass on the great history and culture of the circus, in Italy and in the world. There is a need for the attention, dedication and work of critics and historians, journalists and writers.

It is therefore not a habit, but a precise and meaningful choice, to equip the Salieri Circus with a Press Jury, called to award the prestigious "Critics Award". Its tasks are very different from those of the Technical Jury, which judges the numbers on the basis of a series of precise and impeccable parameters. The Press Jury moves on other criteria, more related to emotions and the relationship with the public with which through the media daily confronts.

We will therefore reward the number that corresponds to three basic requirements: the most media, the one that most "hole" the scene, the one that can make people fall in love with the circus even those who would never go to the circus; the most innovative, because the circus, like all the arts, is renewed, and creativity should be encouraged; and the most poetic, because there is no circus, neither traditional nor contemporary, if there is no poetry. Without poetry, acrobats do not fly. Nor do dreams arise from the ground.

SALIERI CIRCUS PARADE

The Salieri Circus Parade, part of the project Elephant Parade, is a unique installation that combines art with the commitment to the protection of species.

Thanks to the numerous donations received by the many local businesses that have joined the initiative, the International Salieri Circus Award was able to host in Legnago, in front of the Salieri Theatre, the colorful statues belonging to the Elephant Parade.

Every elephant, bearing a tag with the names of its supporters, is equivalent to support for the social enterprise Elephant Parade which provides a structural and constant source of income for the protection and conservation of elephants in their natural habitat, ensuring that these animals can fight for their own space, dignity and survival.

Each statue was painted by an artist or celebrity and represents a unique work of art. The project, hosted in major international capitals such as London, Singapore, Rio De Janeiro, Copenhagen, Tokyo, Las Vegas, Amsterdam and Hong Kong, over the years has had the support of many artists and brands including: Ricky Gervais, Katy Perry, Bryan Adams, Phil Collins, Ferrari, Tommy Hilfiger, Virgin Active and Hasbro.

How the project was born

Social Enterprise was founded in 2006 by Mark and Mike Spits to save the life of the elephant Masha, who had tragically lost a leg to a mine. Masha became the first elephant in the world to use a prosthesis to walk.

Salieri Circus Parade is a project oriented to Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) and made possible only thanks to the Art Bonus.

Museo Storico della Giostra e dello Spettacolo Popolare

Bergantino - RO

Il Museo Storico della Giostra è stato istituito nel 1999 dal Comune di Bergantino e dalla Provincia di Rovigo, sotto l'egida del Ministero per i Beni e le Attività Culturali e in collaborazione con il Museo Nazionale delle Arti e Tradizioni Popolari di Roma, con il Centro Etnografico di Ferrara e con l'Accademia dei Concordi di Rovigo.

Museo unico nel suo genere in Italia, ha incontrato subito il favore del pubblico, dal quale è stato accolto con entusiastici consensi fin dal suo primo apparire sulla scena del mondo culturale, divenendo meta di un turismo in continua espansione anche in ambito internazionale. E' un museo che piace perché è nato per tutti, in quanto racconta la storia non solo delle giostre, ma di tutti i giochi e spettacoli della Fiera e del Luna Park dal Medioevo ad oggi, una storia plurisecolare che ci coinvolge tutti e penetra nella vita di ciascuno di noi.

PORTFOLIO

The International Salieri Circus Award has deep roots. In the early 90s, in fact, the Giarola brothers produced the Festival Internazionale del Circo Città di Verona, which for some years became one of the most important events in the sector.

This portfolio of Gilles-Henri Polge of 1994 wants to remember its importance through some shots made to artists who participated and who, as in the case of Oleg Izossimov, then became celebrities.

S.p.A. è concessionaria della costruzione e gestione del Sistema Integrato di Trattamento e Smaltimento Rifiuti di Torretta di Legnago (VR), costituita dalla discarica per Rifiuti Non Pericolosi e dell'impianto di selezione e biostabilizzazione che costituisce oggi l'unico riferimento per lo smaltimento della frazione residua delle raccolte differenziate della provincia di Verona.

Nell'ottica di ricercare e sviluppare attività volte alla sostenibilità ambientale, Le.Se. SpA ha avviato una ricerca, in collaborazione con L'università di Padova, per distruggere le sostanze perfluoroalchiliche (PFAAS) contenute dai residui prodotti dall'impianto ora destinati in impianti terzi.
